1975

It's our year. We will remember it always.

The year and its quiet

reflections

are special to us;
but really, why?

We aren't celebrating the Bicentennial of the country

or even of the town.

We're somewhat caught in the middle.

In a sense, we are ending thirteen long, hard years of accomplishment — but in an even greater sense, of so many new and beautiful things.

We are the new hope for the town.
We are the ones that will start this town on its third century of prosperity, of life.

But we are starting our own lives, too. We are ending many years of training and of dependence. We are leaving the security we found in the daily ride on the school bus, the security we found in Ludlow High School. But we have to plan and live our lives to the fullest, because they are our lives, and we are the only ones who can shape them.

We have to think ahead; we must consider tomorrow. But we have to start with today, with ourselves, because we are the beginning, the future.

We are the Class of 1975.

So many times people are heard to say, "Do you remember when . . .?", and suddenly so many good memories are recaptured. Hopefully, this yearbook will help you to recapture some of the beautiful memories of 1975.

Like all schools, we had many problems with the book. But we survived, even through climbing trees, minor car accidents and late-night idea shortages, or should I say absences. We kept on going, thanks to people like those from Hausamann Studios, Mr. Krasner and Joe Wrinn, whose photography was used in the book. To Mr. Bradshaw, Mr. Hurley and Mr. Lendry, a very special thanks, because I know what a problem I really was, and you'll never know how much I appreciate your patience and understanding.

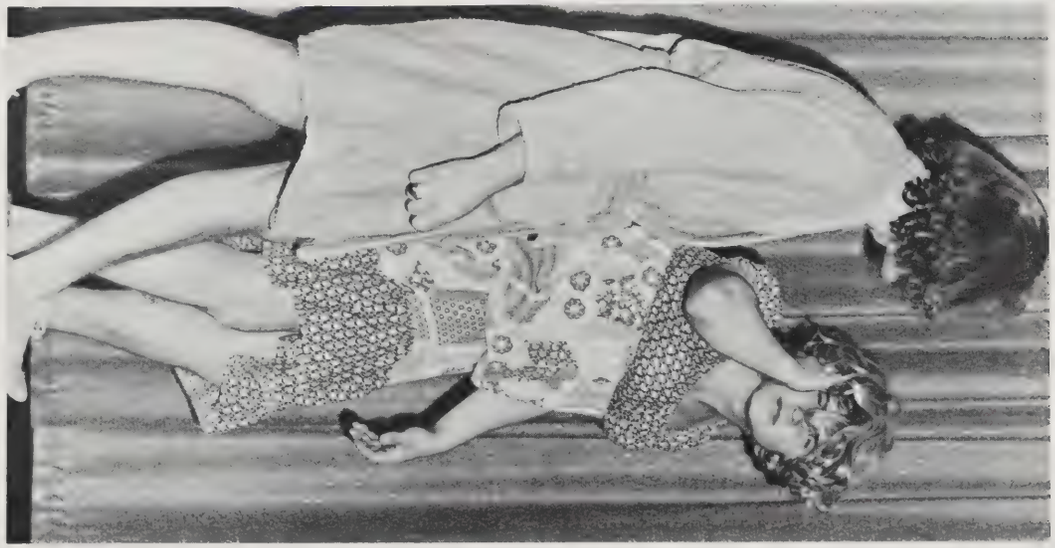

There are so many people working on the book who deserve so much more recognition than they receive. When things got very rough at the end, there were those who stuck with me all the way. They never knew the meaning of the word quit. They kept me and the book going when it seemed like the end was never to be reached. And so, to Kathy, John, Leila, Mary Lou and especially to my parents, I can only say thank you; you'll never really know how much you've helped me and how much you mean to me.

We've done our best for you, and we only hope that the book is worthy of the very special Class it represents.

Booster Day Dance kicks off 1975 social season

On November 1st, the senior class began the school's social season with the annual Booster Day dance and pep rally. The result of the spirit award was announced and the title of most spirited class was given to the seniors. The success of the rally was highlighted by the burning in effigy of the South Hadley dummy. Everyone proceeded afterwards to the sports-decorated gymnasium for the dance, where the massive crowds were shaking and jiving to the lively lyrics of "Montigue Plains".

(1) Seniors greet the student body.
(2) Seniors, Candy Dias, Joe Moura, and Bruce Wilson pick at the remains their rivals.
(3) Cross-Country modestly awaits their well-deserved praise.

(1) Senior football members contemplate the seriousness of the "big game" the next day.
(2)"Take your shoes off, but you all come back now ya hear".
(3) Lloyd Mendes trying to escape from the clutches of Karen Davis.
(4) "Hey you're cute. What are you doing after the dance?"
(5) Rosey Silva and Kim Labossier take a break from the dance.
(6) "All right Laurie, we'll bring the house down with the next dance."

Juniors had winter on their minds.

On December 6, 1974, the junior class presented its traditional dance entitled "Winter on Your Mind". Situated amid winter decorations, the immense crowd demonstrated their feelings, whether it be talking among friends, or dancing to the music of "Beggar's Opera". A good time was enjoyed by all.

Illusion and Mystery spot lighted

Pushing toward their enormous $90,000.00 goal, the Ludlow Music Society sponsored a double performance by "Volcane, the Master Magician and Illusionist." Held on Saturday, October twelfth, each show featured special guest, "Amazing Rodney, Clown Prince of Magic." Adding to the total mystical world was the presentation of a magical baby rabbit at each performance. Not only did the performance increase the band's chances, but it also provided unique entertainment for everyone.

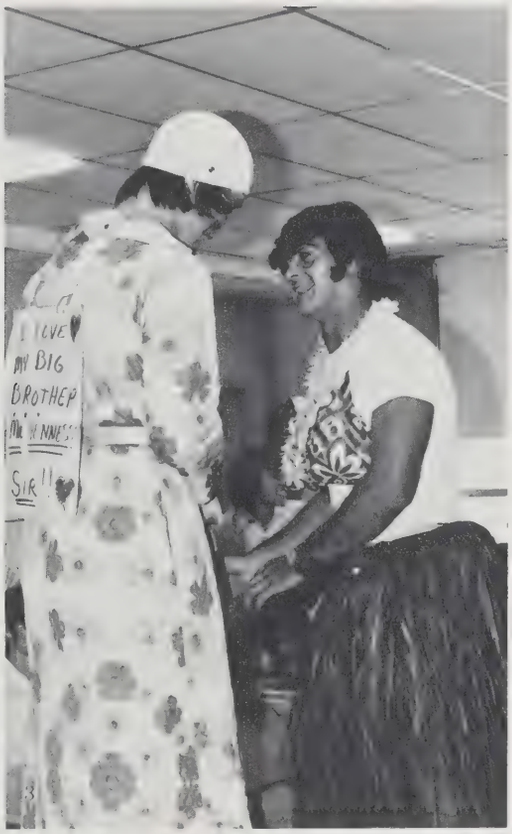

1. "Look Ma, No hands." 2. "Volcanes assistant pauses for a bow." 3. "Who me?" 4. "Do you have a license for acupuncture?" 5. "And now, the disappearing Moose Act."

Recruiting season

Tormenting the juniors with degrading female apparel, hair rollers, tray service during cafeteria lunches and sprawling floor calethenics, the senior members of LHS's unique Hi-Y Club again pushed its initiation ceremony to the limit.
As usual,
initiation lasted for one whole terrifying week for the new members and one uproarious week
for the rest of the school.
Events culminated with a forced eat-in which included a menu much too
delicious to mention.
New members were encouraged to partake of any and all entrees, much to the delight of the senior veterans.

1. Little Brothers begin their initiation rites by singing a song. 2. Orlando Faustino takes orders from his big brother. 3. Gary Allan and Fred Catarino perform in cafeteria. 4. Paul Machado enjoying his crawl. 5. "Jim Queros has to get his nose into everything."

Hi-Y presents "Who Cares?"

Performing for a packed house, The Hi-Y Organization presented "Who Cares" on November 22, 1974. The program was expertly managed by student directors: Bruce Wilson and Jeff McChesney. It included: groups, comedy acts, folk singers, and a variety of talent acts. Proceeds are used annually to provide Thanksgiving dinners for Ludlow's deprived families. It is one of the many charitable services the club promotes.

1. "Walnuts" introduce themselves. 2. "Not tonight. I have a headache." 3. "I smell clean."

1. "By George, I do believe we are having a jolly good time." 2. Brazil has its nuts, too. 3. Miss Victory Court. 4. Donna Oldenburg, Miss Victory, draws raffle ticket. 5. Even the mighty nutcracker can't get through the muscles of Scott Symington.

Christmas is present without even a present

A gift is a mere token of a person's feeling. The only gift the Freshmen and Sophomores had was themselves, and that's just what they offered to the children of Belchertown State School. On December 13th, a certain glow came to the auditorium when the underclassmen brought smiles to many sad faces with their seasonal songs and heartwarming skits. Under the direction of Mr. Cotti and Mr. Levine, the underclassmen showed their talent, creativity, and Christmas spirit to the whole school in a performance we'll all remember.

1. Everyone gets together for a little song. 2. A visit from the Christmas clown keeps everyone happy. 3. A few ornaments and a little love make this tree into a real Christmas tree.

Children have a way with Christmas

Mrs. Stagnaro's and Mrs. Patullo's child development classes proved to have a way with children. Younger brothers, sisters, cousins or just friends were brought to school on December 17 & 18 to simply have fun and enjoy the Christmas Parties. The senior girls had everything ready and waiting; candy, cake, games and even Santa himself.

1. "You mean we can get our hands dirty and not get into trouble?" 2. "Aw come on, you didn't see me pull the cat's tail!" 3. Karen Davis amuses her neice Chris. 4. "Oh Boy, this is fun!" 5. & 6. Todd seems to be enjoying the candy.

JCL-One big happy family

January 26, 1975 marked the 4th annual Junior Classical League's "All in the Family Night". J.C.L. members and their families enjoyed an evening of excellent food, fine entertainment, and a spirit of togetherness. Too many times the importance of a family is taken for granted. The significance of the family was brought out in an thought-provoking speech made by Dr. Vincent Cleary, Head of the Classics Department at U Mass.The recalling of old memories was brought about by the Zumbyes, who provided the entertainment portion of the program.

On January 3, 1975
a benefit dance

memory of three former students of the Class of 1974,
Kerry Alves, Chester
Halgas, and David Hennessy.
The Polish American Citizen's

worthy occasion.
The proceeds will be put into a scholarship

students of the Classes of 1974 and 1975.

(1) Cher Pawlin and Lance Mills take it easy.
(2) "Rickie, will you stop whistling and pay attention".
(3) Del and DeeDee Lafountain . . . the brother and sister combo.

"We Can Make It On Our Own"

"We Can Make It On Our Own" seemed to be an especially appropriate title for the annual Home Economics fashion show. The event, which featured outfits made by students in Mrs. Stagnaro's and Mrs. Patullo's clothing and tailoring classes, was held on the afternoon of May 4th. Each girl modeled her own creations and was judged by other girls in her class. The girls made a fine showing for themselves and for the Home Economics department.

1. Judges watch very carefully as girls model their creations. 2. Donna Ross models the end result of her hard work. 3. Terry Batista amuses her little friend before they model their outfits. 4. Laura Burden presents part of the show.

The "Big" Game

It wasn't the Celts-vs- the Nicks. It was just the High School-vs-the Junior High and the Senior Cheerleaders and Girls' Basketball players-vs-the Senior Maroon Key. It was a battle to the bitter end. The evening started with Freshmen-vs-the Boys' Club team, which was followed by the senior game. The night ended with a game between the Junior and Senior high teachers. For all, the evening was extremely enjoyable. Everyone got a few laughs, while watching basketball at its "best"??

1. Some at our finer athletes showing their skill and coordination. 2. Ken Bousquet gets all excited over his basket. 3. Dave LaFortune awaits a high pass. 4. "No, you're wrong, it's not Wilt Chamberlin. It's Mr. "Super-Athlete" Pinkos". 5. Freshmen show their skills.

We can make it together

"Mackerel Sky" entertained for "We Can Make It Together," the first major activity for the Freshman Class. The Spring dance was held on April 4, at 7:30 p.m. Semi-formal attire enhanced the evening's Festivities as the frosh began to unify, looking toward future events and years.

1. "All right, this is my strategy." 2. Getting it on. 3. All set to go back for another round.

1. Native gathering. 2. Hurrying to get back for more dancing. 3. Taking a relaxing break. 4. "Smile, you're on Candid Camera". 5. Collaboration Corner.

Sophomores Were All In It Together

On April 11th, the class of 1977 held their Sophomore Banquet entitled "We're All in This Together." The semi-formal dinner-dance began with a delectable smorgasbord which was followed by the enchanting music of "Hershel Wingnuts", and the dancing expertise of the members of the Sophomore Class. Altogether it was an extremely enjoyable event which will be long remembered by all who attended.

1. Smile for the camera! 2. "Oh my, I'm so excited!!" 3. Nancy Brockney & Linda White taking pictures. 4. "Alright don't push, I'll ask her to dance in a minute."

1. Bridget Dusel & Gail Patullo dancing up a storm. 2. "Hey, where's everybody going?" "I was only kidding!" 3. Some Sophomores taking a break from the action. 4. Terry Glanville's expression shows just the way she feels. 5. Sue Saloio in one of her calmer moments.

"The Secret Garden"

The magic moment finally arrived and at eight o'clock in the evening on May twenty-third, the Junior Class held the annual prom. It was entitled, "The Secret Garden" and was held at the Sheraton West in West Springfield. Diane Kibbe, as Junior Class president was chairperson of the prom and put together a memorable evening of fine food, a pleasant atmosphere and enjoyable music. The highlight of the evening was the crowning of Robin Gluck as Prom Queen and the selection of her court. Truly, May twenty-third was an especially beautiful evening for all who were lucky enough to attend.

1. Allanna Fillon was so hungry, she couldn't wait for the meal. 2. It must be magic. 3. Everyone looks on as these couples dance for selection of Prom Queen. 4. & 5. The smiles on these couples' tell more than words ever could. 6. "Boy, does that guy eat fast! He's already eating his dessert".

COMMUNITY AFFAIRS

The Commemorative Medal Obverse
The three couples represent the incorporation, centennial and bicentennial periods. A covered bridge, a replica of the last wooden covered bridge known as "Put's Bridge" at Wallamanumps Falls, one of the mills of the Ludlow Company, and a church representing the First, or Town Church at Ludlow Center, the first religious edifice in town, complete the design.

Earliest settlers of Ludlow arrived around 1750, and tradition has given the honor of the first arrival to one Aaron Colton. Others also arriving during this early period were Joseph Miller, James Sheldon, Shem Chapin, and Benjamin Sikes. These men settled in the northeast corner of the town, along the Chicopee River, in what was known as the Outward Commons, a then unsettled tract belonging to, and east of, Springfield.

In 1774 Ludlow was incorporated as a District, and in 1775 as a town. Why it is named Ludlow is not definitely known, but one explanation is that it was named after Roger Ludlow, a prominent citizen in early New England history, living in Roxbury, from whence some of the settlers of Ludlow came. The town began as an agricultural community, but the advantages of water power from the falls of Wallamanumps, and the existence of several sizable streams soon attracted industry. In addition to sawmills and gristmills located on the various streams, other industries including textiles, furniture, tar kilns, a distillery, and the famous Ludlow Glass Works, also sprang up. Later, industry was concentrated on Wallamanumps Falls. Here a dam generated enough power to operate factories, successfully producing scythes, textiles, gun barrels, and cotton machinery. This latter venture was taken over by the company that ultimately became the Ludlow Manufacturing Associates. This company specialized in products made from jute raised in India. The L.M.A., as it was called, became a dominant factor in town affairs for many years and was responsible for the building of the Hubbard Memorial Library, the Stevens Memorial Recreation Building, the first High School, and many other benefits the town still enjoys. Another factor which influenced the type of community which Ludlow now is, was the immigration of successive groups of Scotch, French, Italian, Polish and finally Portuguese, to become mill operators. Ludlow, like the United States, is truly a melting pot.

Variety

In 1974 as part of Ludlow's bicentennial celebration, the Ludlow Education Association helped stage the Bicentennial Variety Show. The show was divided into several segments, each of which centered around the activities of a particular decade. This was one of the most successful events of the bicentennial year, and certainly one of the most enjoyable.

Religion and education are both strong influences in community life in Ludlow. Certain homes were designated as places for public worship as early as 1774, and the first meeting house was completed in 1784. Until about 1840, it was used as both a church and a meeting place to conduct town business. In 1840, the first church building was erected at Ludlow Center. Through the years, eight more churches of various faiths have been organized, and all nine are still active parishes.

In 1777 it was voted that money be appropriated to support the schools. Since then, the growth of the educational system has kept pace with town growth, and presently the school system has grown to include buildings and a staff to educate over 4000 students.

Ludlow has grown from a settlement of a few hundred persons in 1774 to a town of 17,000 in 1970. It has also changed from an agricultural and mill town to a suburban residential community for persons largely employed outside of Ludlow. There is, however, a fair amount of light industry providing employment. Two additional factors affecting Ludlow's growth has been the Westover Air Force Base, and the Massachusetts Turnpike, which bisected the town in 1957.

Yearbooks: 50 Years of Progress

First football team — 1926

Fifty editions ago, the senior class of 1926 penned the first lines of their yearbook. Although the technology has changed the purpose has not. That purpose was, and still is, to save the memories of a graduating class for posterity. The yearbook has grown and matured these fifty years with innovation, our by-word. Whether it be the Static, High News, Review or Lion; it has consistantly shown a high level of quality. In the next few pages several covers and staffs are presented; as an aside, it is interesting to note the appearance of the several people presented. Each year is representative of the decade it is part of.

Ludlow Jr.-Senior High faculty — 1926

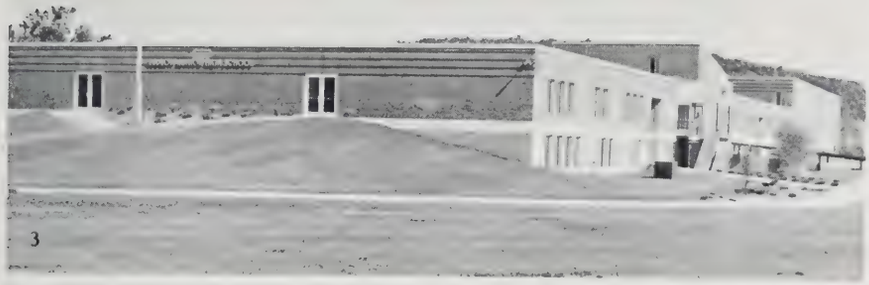

Government

During the past year, Ludlow has seen a great deal of change. This was especially true in the area of government. Ludlow built its first building designed for a Junior High School. This modern school, costing $3.7 million, is completely carpeted in the educational wing and contains shops, a multi-media center, a audio-visual department, mini gyms, science areas, a lecture hall, a home economics section, a music area, and twenty general-purpose classrooms. We also built our first town office building. This $682,000 three-story building allows space (16,500 ft.) for a modern town government. With its proximity to the Veterans Park three-school complex, it allows the use of government in action as an educational tool. Not only have buildings been built, but students have become involved in government. William Davidson, a senior, was elected a precinct member. Precinct members determine public policy for the town. In addition, Paul Czynodel and several other students acted as pages at town meetings. The pages speed-up town meetings, by helping the moderator with housekeeping functions.

"For the first time in history of the school, a year book has been published." This was the foreward to the 1926 yearbook. At this time, the high school was on Chestnut Street. The Static, the first title, was printed by and for the senior class and was truly a class project with 15 of 23 class members participating. The majority of the pages were narration because of the expense of photographs. 1926 was also a year of innovation with the founding of the school newspaper, the first vocational counseling, and our first football team. During this decade the town was very prosperous, with the Ludlow Manufacturing Associates providing the major portion of employment. The classes of the high school continued to increase in size and the program of studies continued to increase.

1926 yearbook cover

1933 was a different time from 1926. The town was in the middle of a depression and because of a lack of funds, the yearbook became an edition of the newspaper. There is only one photo in this book, which had shrunk to 30 pages from 48. The size of the classes shrunk because many students had to go to work to support their families. The program of studies was reduced and the town lowered its support of education. The majority of small taxpayers in town were unable to pay their taxes and the majority of the town's budget was expended for public assistance. The 72 graduates of the class looked at a bleak job market. The times were not unlike today, however today is a little more hopeful. It is interesting to note that the town's budget was less than $500,000 and today it is almost $10,000,000. The town voted to ask the state to keep the state's general budget to $8,000,000 and today it is nearly $3,270,000,000.

Guidance

The Ludlow High School guidance department, under the direction of Mr. Louis Casagrande, offered several innovative programs for students this year. In addition to the now-traditional college night, the department has a program of career discussions and a job far. The career discussion program invites members of the business community to introduce students to various careers such as engineering, accounting, and business management. Many of the guests brought with them examples of products their companies make or use. Most of these men discussed opportunities in their fields and the educational requirements of their jobs. One of the highlights of the program was the visit to the Monsanto plants in Springfield by a group of students who were able to see the lab and research areas, as well as the general production facilities. This gave the students a better understanding of the job of a Chemical Engineer. The job fair, on the other hand, allowed students to talk to personnel recruiters from industry. Students could move from station to station and speak to a wide range of people from the Navy to the Third National Bank. Both of these programs were very successful and show the level of interest the guidance department has in the welfare of non-college oriented graduating student as well as the college-prep. students.

CIVIL AIR PATROL

1945 civil air patrol

By 1945 Ludlow High School was able to publish its yearbook in a volume separate from the newspaper. Under the direction of Miss Saulnier, seventy pages of narrative and photos were published as the Review. The school program again increased as the size of the graduating classes increased. Senior boys' cooking and girls' shop courses proved Ludlow to be a leader in the fight to break down sex roles. The interests of the school were not only academic in nature, but also expanded into areas of community and national service. The school was very involved in the sales of World War II bonds and the training of pilots through its civil air patrol branch. In sports, Ludlow reintroduced girls' basketball and captured the Western Massachusetts Soccer championship.

1955 yearbook staff and Miss Saulnier, advisor

The 1955 yearbook reflected the 50's well. There were few changes in the yearbook, with the exception of the introduction of the hard cover, during this time. The Lion was expanded to 88 pages under the continued direction of Miss Saulnier. The 50's were generally prosperous with Ludlow becoming more and more a bedroom community of Springfield. The decade was also a time of great political shifts in Ludlow and the first rumblings of the need for governmental change. Zoning was established and this will forever change the development of the town. An increase in building was to introduce the town to the profound social changes taking place. These social changes are reflected today in the makeup of the community with the majority of the residents being first or second generation Ludlowites. The old class structure has been diluted and a new one is forming.

Senator Kennedy Visits Ludlow

This year, Ludlow High School was honored with a visit from Senator Edward M. Kennedy. As is his custom during the recess of Congress, he travels from town to town to meet with his constituents and speak with students at many of the state's high schools. The assembly was held in the gym because the Senator feels that using gyms allow a more relaxed atmosphere. At each of the schools he visits, he polls the students on major national issues to see what students think. After he completed polling the students, he answered questions from the audience. All in all, it was an interesting way to allow students to gain insights on the thoughts of a national leader.

1. Senior class officers meet wth Senator Kennedy. 2. Senator Kennedy and Congressman Edward P. Boland. 3. Senator Kennedy gives a few opening remarks. 4. Polling the audience, Senator Kennedy finds out about the concerns of today's student. 5. Students listen intently as Senator Kennedy answers questions.

1964 yearbook staff

1964 showed a marked change from the yearbooks of previous decades as it emphasized more underclass activities, had color photographs, and was at a new school. In 1961-1962 the present Ludlow High School was constructed. Now Ludlow had a true senior high school plant. Many extra-curricular activities were offered. These included Audio Visual Aides, under the direction of Mr. Duclos; Latin club, Mr. Lucia advisor; and the High News, Mr. Linehan and Mr. Rooney advisors. The underclassmen made a great step forward when the yearbook began to cover underclass activites. The yearbook was no longer a senior year remembrance book, but was now a true record of the year's happenings. This yearbook showed a change in the times with the elimination of most narration and the substitution of more photo essays, and a more professional design with a color photo of the class.

FINE ARTS

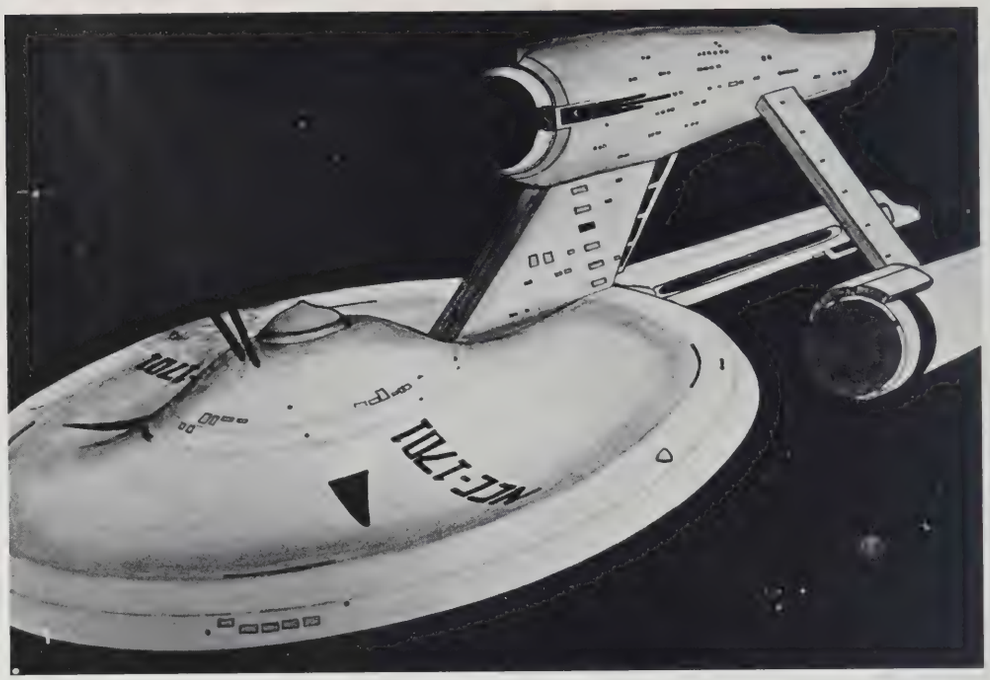

FINE ARTS

Culture, talent, opportunity of self-expression, sense of fulfillment

OH WOW! Room 106 is like no other classroom in L.H.S. It allowed creativity, insanity, music (the New Riders and Helder Ganhao's chordovox), happiness, and even frequent outbursts of temper to flow without and within.

Our many projects throughout the year, usually began as meaningless and boring assignments, but as our minds began to form ideas and our artistry bloomed into new dimensions we were estatic with the final outcome. From plaster casts, to clay images to box assemblages, we loved them all, in the end. And Mr. Burns, we loved him too.

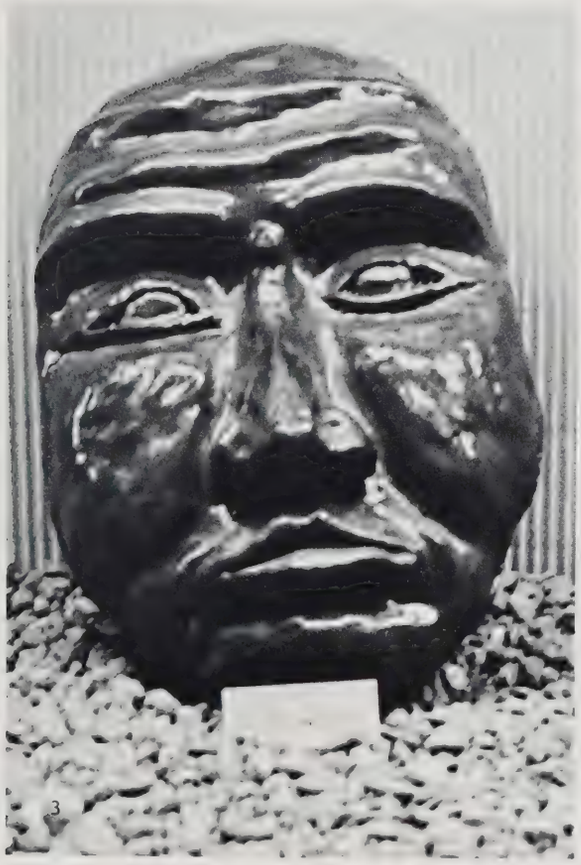

1. "Star Trek" by Helder Ganhao. 2. Cyndy Narbonne's stryo-sculpture on exhibit. 3. An example of box assemblages done by Debbie DeSimone.

1. This cast of Jeanne Hopkins is just one of the many "plaster people" seen lounging in Room 106. 2. Seniors show their talents during senior week with creations such as these. The styro-torso is by Jan Sajdak, the goblet by Wayne Cristina. 3. A sculptured face by Liz Pellegrino. 4. A few works of art by Class of '75.

Marching band, color guard, and majorettes

1. Halftime finds the marching band in action. 2. Instruments left behind after a job well done. 3. Drum major, Mark Hiorns leads the marching band in performance.

Boost halftime spirit

The start of halftime activites is exciting, if you're watching the L.H.S. Marching band. This fine group of musicians has proven itself to be one of the best in the area through its imaginative performances. Drum major, Mark Hiorns, was honored recently for his leadership abilities in a regional marching competition. The Color Guard and Majorette squads must not be forgotten, for their performances gave color and refreshing liveliness to football games. Besides aiding the band in halftime shows and local parades, the girls also accompanied the band at the music festival in Austria. Each member of the squads is to be congratulated on her dedication and on the fine quality of the performances. Majorettes: Coreen Bowman, Donna Boduch, Jeanne Chenier, Marie Falconer, Lori Desilets, Donna Nelson, Debbie Wagner. Color Guard: Lisa Golden, Laurie Garrow, Sandy Piligian, June Reopel, Connie Salwa, and Karen Skinner.

Formal, talented, and rhythmic — the L.H.S stage band

The Ludlow High School Band is rising to new and exciting heights of excellence. Reed and woodwind,drums, and plenty of brass playing together, they made their own kind of music. This large group of talented musicians worked hard to build a fine reputation for themselves with the help of their officers. The 1974-75 officers were: President — Kathy Green, Vice-President — Candy Dias, Secretary-Treasurer — Donna Oldenburg.

Most of the year was spent on readying for the International Youth and Music Festival held in Vienna, but the band did participate in the State Competition at the University of Massachusetts. There they received very high ratings from the judges.

The band also performed in concert for the general public in January. Under the direction of Mr. Royce Layman, the concert combined the experience and knowledge of upperclassmen and the energy and willingness of new-coming members. Aiding Mr. Layman in the January Pops Concert was a practice teacher, Mr. Darren.

During the coarse of the year, the band performed such pieces as: "O Du Mein Osterreich," "The Military," "Suite in F," "The Thunderer," and "Toccata."

Vienna '75 — A dream come true

The summer of '75 proved to be exciting for those students in the L.H.S. band. For more than one year each member contributed his time and efforts to raise the money for travel expenses. Students in the band sponsored raffles, pancake breakfasts, picnics, tag sales, door-to-door sales, stationery and pen sales, car washes and even a walkathon to be considered for the trip. They auditioned on both the State and National levels, and once they were at the festival, they had to compete with many excellent bands, not only from the United States, but also from Europe and Israel. Their efforts were justly rewarded when they received second place in a field of 25 bands. Diane Maurice, a sophomore, was also honored, winning first place in the soloist competition. Among the many articles that were written in praise of the Ludlow band was one that appeared in the Congressional Record. Congressman Boland honored the L.H.S. band with these words "Perhaps one thing that can be said about their accomplishment is that they did it themselves, from start to finish. Aside from their musical ability, they worked hard for the funds their European trip required and they succeeded because they set a goal and didn't budge from it.

The youngsters had helping hands, of course, from parents and friends, but without their own dedication the dream wouldn't have come true. They did great credit to themselves — and to their generation."

French IV students present play

A group of French IV students proved their theatrical abilities this past spring when they presented "La Faim est un Grand Inventeur" or "Hunger is a Great Inventor." This one-act comedy, directed by Mr. James Martin of the Language Department, proved to be an entertaining treat for all. Two special performances were given, one for the French Department and one evening show for the general public. A few of the participants are shown to the left. SEATED. G. Fern, G. Fatal, K. Collins. STANDING: I.Mendes, S.Piligian, T.Dearness, T.Salva, P.Irvine, M.Hopkins, S.Walker and R.Desaulets.

Oliver Twist

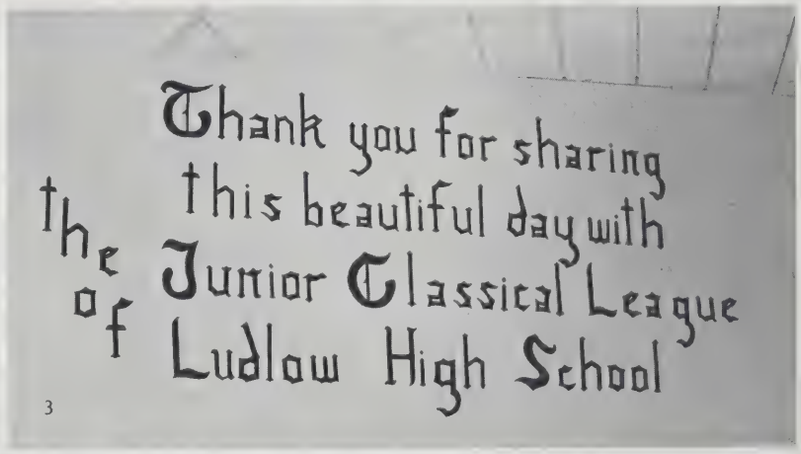

On June 13th the Class of 1978 presented their own production of Oliver Twist, the story of a young orphan boy who stole, pickpocketed and swindled the people of London for his meager livelihood. Long hours and much devotion from the directors, Mr. Burrage and Mrs. Stack, and members of the cast resulted in a superb production. The scenery was designed and built entirely by the students and the costumes were also a result of the students creativity. Some of the characters portrayed are shown to the left. COUNTER CLOCKWISE: S. Pasquini as Old Sally, C. Veautour as the Bookseller, S. Fern as Charley Bates, and J. Dias as the Artful Dodger.

J.C.L. Presents: "Forgotten By Many,

This spring the Junior Classical League presented the seventh of their annual assembly programs. On March 18th, 19th, and 20th, the League performed for the general public, student body, and area schools, but on the 21st, it was with great pride that the membership of the J.C.L. presented their show at the 1975 convention of the Classical Association of New England, held at Fairfield University in Fairfield, Connecticut. Accompanying the J.C.L. was Mr. John J. Hurley, principal of Ludlow High, who believed that the messages conveyed through the show would be of meaning to each and every viewer. "Forgotten by Many, Remembered by Few" drew ties between our own world and a world of long ago, making clear that the lessons of the past are all too often forgotten by many and remembered by few. Under the direction of Mr. Charles Bradshaw assistants James Marceau, Susan Mazza, Barbara Martucci, Marybeth Lewison, Wallace Gay and student advisor Leila Spadoni, the J.C.L. transmitted a message pertinent to all. Through myths and music, movies and slides, comedy and tears — the Junior Classical League of 1975.

Principal, Mr. Hurley, expresses the school's best wishes for a successful performance, as he too prepares to leave for Fairfield University in support of the Junior Classical League.

"Dirty Work at the Crossroads"

On December 13th and 14th the Ludlow High Theatre Arts Club put on its annual production. Through the talents of veteran actors, combined with those of newcomers, the presentation followed the standard melodramatic formula in everway, and included everything from a "mustached" villain wieth a black top-hat to an innocent and child-like heroine.

"Dirty Work at the Crossroads", written by Bill Johnson, is melodrama about a villain who marries women for their money. Audience participation is an important part of the fun in melodrama, with booing, hissing and peanutthrowing being accepted methods of demonstrating dislike of the villain. In this respect the actors had no worries because they performed to a very responsive audience who thoroughly enjoyed the entire play. Many long hours of hard work and untiring efforts were spent by the entire cast. Not only did the student participants work diligently, but faculty advisor, Mrs. Suzanne Kelly, also gave much of herself to present an extremely entertaining play. Props and costumes, designed and created by the students themselves also lent a touch of class and quality to the production, well-deserving of the praise it received.

"Oklahoma"

On Friday and Saturday evenings, May 16th and 17th, the Ludlow High School music department presented Rodger's and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma." Directed by Mr. Gregory Wrinn, "Oklahoma" was the third musical production put on by the department. The production staff included, Mr. James Martin, assistant director, and Mr. Wallace Gay, prop director. Two former Ludlow High students, Bonnie Labossiere and Mary Beth Lewison, handled the choreography. Mrs. Shirley Wrinn served as accompanist, while the sets were designed by Mr. William Albertie of Hartford, Connecticut. Serving as student directors were Lynn Brodeur and Linda Fernandes.

The plot of the story involved the young heroine Laurey, played by Marybeth Randall, and her beau Curley played by Mark Hiorns. Alyce Mucha played the comedy role of Ado Annie, opposite Scott Symington, who played Will Parker. Other roles were Aunt Eller (Nancy Bigda), Jud (Joe Stack), Ali Hakim (Craig Warner), Carnes (Jude O'Hare), Gertie (Erin Davidson), Ike (Dave Lavigne), Cord (Steve Riggs) and Slim (Bob Fernandes). Leading dancers in the show were Jody Saloio and Steven Riggs who performed the dream ballet.

Some of the musical numbers that proved to be favorites were "Oh, What a Beautiful Mornin'," "People Will Say We're in Love," "Surry with the Fringe on Top," "Poor Jud is Dead," and "I Cain't Say No."

1. "Oh, What a Beautiful Mornin'." 2. And upstairs ... maybe paradise. 3. The cowboys marvel at the "little wonder." 4. "The farmer and the cowboy should be friends."

1. "Poor Jud" and Curly have a long talk. 2. Curly isn't quite sure how to answer that question, but Laurey and Andrew look on to make sure he answers the right way. 3. Jon Sandman, Jody Saloio, and Steve Riggs performing the "dream ballet". 4. The girls get together to sing "Many a New Day." 5. "All er Nothin'."

Talented and spirited vocalists entertaining all

The Ludlow High School Choral Department, regarded as one of the outstanding in the area, once again had a successful and rewarding year. Working throughout the Fall studying music for the Christmas and Spring Concerts made things difficult, but the group was looking forward to putting on a musical production some time in May. The Chorus welcomed the season in Christmas spirit with many difficult selections, one of which was "Regina Coeli." The Chorale also gave many concerts during the year, appearing at the Eastfield Mall during Christmas and the First Church during Holy Week. The highlight of the year was the performance of "Oklahoma" on May 16th and 17th. Hours of hard work reared great benefits from this endeavor and much unforeseen talent was discovered. Settling down to another load of music to be learned was difficult after putting on the show, but the Girls' Chorus, Chorale, and Concert Choir were able to present a fine Spring concert. Besides Mr. Wrinn, there were three new directors for the Spring concert; Miss Robin Dewey, a student teacher, and Joe Stack and Helen Lake, student directors. The year was completed at the graduation exercises as the Concert Choir, along with the band, performed "Battle Hymn of the Republic", and bid a tearful good-bye to the Seniors with "The Lord Bless You and Keep You."

ACADEMICS

Administration

Administration, authority figure, fear — they usually go hand-in-hand for some. But for the majority of the students, the administration is there as the friend to whom you never talk, but yet from whom you receive the most help. The school administrators are more than willing to be of service whenever they can. They are our link to the school and its management. Groups, such as the Student Advisory Committee and the Student Council, work along with the administration to make or change school policy and to improve student government, and to them and to the administration, we extend a sincere "thank you."

Once again the faculty and administration of Ludlow High School have given of themselves to another senior class. They have offered help and guidance in planning our future, and they have given us the courage to keep going when we could see only the worst ahead. For that, and for much more that couldn't be expressed we, the Class of 1975, will be forever grateful.

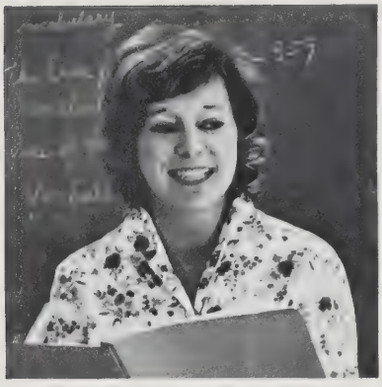

1.Three men to whom we owe so very much. 2.Happy Birthday, Mr. Rooney! 3."Go ahead, I dare you to say you didn't hear the late bell." 4."I know I have to go in there. Just give me a few more minutes." 5.Mr. Hurley accepts his gift from the Class of 1975 at the senior banquet.

English

In its fourth popular year in the English curriculum is the English Elective Program. This program allows juniors and seniors to select their own courses according to their abilities and interests and is an example of student involvement in academic planning. As always, the English Department supervised many extra-curricular activities, one of which was to see a Shakespearean play at Amherst College. Also a performance of "Oliver Twist" was given by an enthusiastic freshman English class.

This year's Mathematics Department offered much the same in the line of courses, but they did so minus one very important and admired man. Early in the year, department head, Mr. Peter Boita, was taken ill and was not able to teach the remainder of the year.

The Math Department continued to provide the opportunity for students to take courses suiting their needs, whether it be in Business, College Preparatory, or Commercial Math.

Social Studies

The two-year-old Anthropology, Black American History, and Non-Western World courses have been very successful. Besides these courses, the Social Studies Department was also involved in Model Congress, trips to Superior Court, and Student Government Day. Science Department head, Mr. Duclos, approved the new and very successful Science program which began this spring. It involved Biology II Seniors who, when their free time coincided with Biology I classes, tutored the sophomores. The department hopes to continue this advantageous program next year. Other senior courses in demand were Anatomy and Physiology and Physics. General Science and Chemistry courses were widely taken by underclassmen. Courses in the curriculum, offered for the tenth grade and up, had text-orientated labs corresponding with class material.

Science

When the Language Department has a course that's successful, they don't leave it as it is — they improve it. Perfect examples of this are Classics College Prep. and Classics in Everyday Life. Student participation is the reason for this success and continued enthusiasm will be the basis upon which more and better courses will be offered. But classroom exercises are not the only components of success. The French-sponsored trip to France, and the JCL Assembly are examples of the "life" that will enable the Language Department to continue and prosper.

Guidance

Many students do not realize that the Guidance counselors are there not only to help, but also to listen when the students talk. The Guidance Department knows the needs of the student body and the counselors are there to discuss just about anything, from problems at home to college plans. Their efforts are exemplefied by the Job Fair program and by a series of visiting representatives from surrounding colleges. The Guidance Department is very efficient and greatly appreciated.

Students in Child Development courses continued to observe youngsters at Veteran's Park Elementary School and study early childhood attitudes and behavior. Very popular for the second year was Food for the Family. This course, along with Cooking I and II, has acquired a chain of interested males.

Physical Education

There was much enthusiasm for the second continuous year of co-educational gym classes. This program is one of the ways the department tries to make meeting physical education requirements more enjoyable. For those students who are athletically inclined, there is a large variety of intramural sports. With the interest of students, gymnastics and other intramural programs may be successful. The Industrial Arts Department this year offered both Household Wiring and Construction as full year courses. The two year old program of Wire Electronics II proved very successful in giving the students interested in this field a chance to learn further about these productive skills. Mechanical Drawing III and IV have been very popular courses in the Industrial Arts curriculum. These courses give students responsibility, a sense of creativity, and a chance to acquire more knowledge in a world in which skilled workmen are still a neccessity.

Office Secretaries

When one mentions a school, just how often do we think of the "people behind the scene" — the librarians, nurse, secretaries, cafeteria ladies and maintaince workers? We usually don't realize just how much these people do. They may not make any earth-shattering decisions, but what they do — finding the right book between classes, easing our aches and pains, running off last-minute notices, feeding the breakfast skippers when they need it most, and keeping the school neat and well-stocked — must not be taken for granted. To these people great appreciation is well deserved.

"Who cares?" the Hi-Y, that's who!

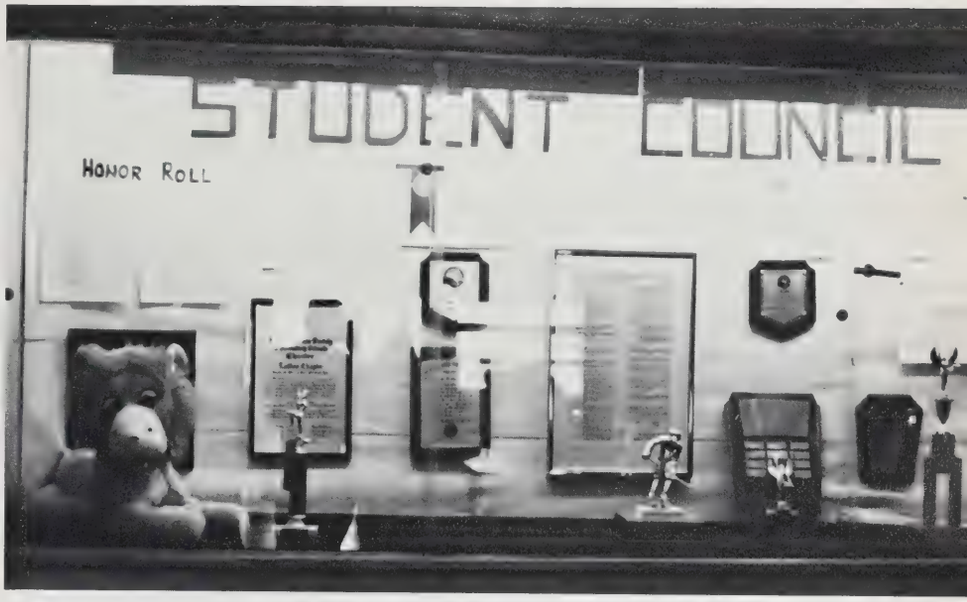

As they do every year, Hi-Y's "little brothers' displayed durability, persistence and courage throughout their week of hysterical initiation. The club presented its annual show entitled "Who Cares?" in November. Crazy characters, dressed-up in "anything and everything", paraded around the stage. A talent contest was also held during the show. First prize went to Debbi Salli, a sophomore who gave a fine performance; second to Joe Lyons, a senior who also played the guitar superbly; and third to Jay Dias, a talented freshman pianist. All proceeds from the show were used to purchase Thanksgiving basket for less fortunate families in Ludlow. This kind generosity and thoughtfulness deserves much praise and a heart-felt "thank you" and certainly proves that the Hi-Y really does care.

Student Council — a club with force

The Student Council is a governing body, comprised of representatives from each of the four classes. One main job of the Student Council is to approve proposals for class activities and functions. This year was both busy and eventful. The Council decorated the school for the holidays, continued the use of the valedictorian plaque, held a Student Council poster sale, supported the after-school sports program, and decorated the Student Council showcase. The Council also sent six delegates to the Student Council meeting at Algonquin Regional High School. In May, it sponsored a very successful Bloodmobile and has once again proved to be one of the most important organizations at L.H.S.

Maroon Key

No longer dominated by male chauvanists, the Maroon Key entered its second year with female members. Many wrongly believe that athletic ability and achievement are the only qualifications for Maroon Key membership. Academic ability is also a criterion for becoming a member and shows that Maroon Key tries to encourage the acceptance of the well-rounded individual. This year's activities included the now — traditional Maroon Key — Cheerleader Benefit Basketball Game, and the presentation of awards to graduating members of the club.

Model Congress brings home a victory

Model Congress is comprised of students who each year attend a convention for area schools at American International College. This year the L.H.S. delegation, consisting of Juniors only, came home from the session with a victory. The Bill was presented by Peter Irvine and was based on the regulation of the ingredients of the "hot dog." The delegation's aim was to make the hot dog a healthier product. The Bill passed through the committee and the House. All members and advisor Mr. Pinkos were proud of their well-deserved victory.

Pro Merito

Pro Merito has been in existence for about thirty years. In that time, its membership has increased greatly, but its amount of activities has steadily declined. The club is still without an advisor, and it has lost both academic recognition and pride. Hopefully, the next thirty years will see a more active club, because there are so many students with great academic abilities who deserve but do not get the recognition and praise for which they have worked so very hard.

Cheerleaders lead school in spirit

Through every loss and victory, in the warm, autumn sun or in the cold, autumn winds, the Ludlow High School cheerleaders led the Lion fans in cheers and urged our teams on. Senior varsity captain Candy Dias and her squad showed the undying enthusiasm, typical of Lion fans. The day of the Booster Day Dance, the cheerleaders, including varsity, junior varsity, and freshman squads, performed during the pep assembly and again at the pep rally just before the dance. During these rallies, the cheerleaders taught the students new cheers, many of which were learned when the girls attended summer cheerleading camp. Through long hours of preparation and practice, the cheerleaders have developed and improved their techniques and skills, and have raised school spirit to a remarkable high. To all of them, a sincere thanks for a job well-done.

Student Patrol in charge of Halls

Pushing, punching, shoving, and stampeeding are all good terms by which to describe the hall traffic at L.H.S. Student Patrol, a club organized to curb such radical actions, has taken on a very difficult task. Contrary to what some teachers and underclassmen may think, the main function of the Student Patrol is to regulate traffic in the halls, and to aid Freshmen in finding their classes. This year's club withstood moments of controversy over the grouping together of club members, and verbal assaults from the administration. It was even contemplated that Student Patrol be abolished, but the club was able to prove its worth and remained as a part of Ludlow High School.

The Student Patrol has a very difficult job to do; keeping hundreds of students in line is far from easy. They have done this task well and should be commended for it.

Library Aides

This year, some changes took place within the library. The library aides joined to form the Library Service Club. Then later in the year, Mrs.Bessie Juddleson retired as school librarian. Midway through the school year, Mr. Lynch became the new librarian. As for the club, the members visited many libraries, including the ones at Hampshire College, Mount Holyoke and the University of Massachusetts. With the help of librarian Mrs.French, the club gave a farewell party to Mrs. Juddleson and Library Service pins were presented to graduating seniors at the Senior Assembly.

Audio-Visual Aides Club

The Audio Visual Aides is a club almost entirely unrecognized by L.H.S. students. Many people fail to realize the functions that can be performed by such a club. This year, the A.V.A. filmed Senator Kennedy's visit to L.H.S. and the Freshman Play, which was presented at the end of the year. Several football and girls' basketball games were also filmed. These movies have helped greatly in showing the players, through seeing their mistakes, how they can improve their games. Now that it is an organized club, under the direction of Mr. Andreis, the A.V.A. is off to a good start and has every chance of receiving the recognition it so richly deserves.

The Cub

Once again, the school newspaper has changed its name. The 1974 — 1975 newspaper is now THE CUB. This year, along with a new name, this paper also has some new ideas. On January 15th, a Scholastic Press Forum was held at American International College. School representatives from all over New England and New York attended the forum to combine ideas on how to improve their newspapers. The day was comprised of workshops and featured guest speakers from WHYN, the National Geographic and the Washington Post.

From this professional assistance, the CUB staff has gotten many innovative ideas for our paper. With the further assistance of advisor, Miss Dibble, it has produced a very fine newspaper and has every hope for even better editions next year.

"Checkmate"

This year, the L.H.S. Chess Club, under the direction of Mr. James Marceau, began its fourth year of competition in the Western Massachusetts-Connecticut Valley Inter-Scholastic Chess League. Ludlow played each school in this league three times, for a total of nine season matches. This year's club was basically comprised of juniors and seniors, most of whom had previous experience in the club, but this advantage was not great enough to give the Lions a winning season. The Ludlow Chessmen now consider themselves a club rather than a team, because chess is really not a sport. It is a "battle of the minds", which requires concentration and will-power, and hopefully these qualities will help in making the Chess Club a-nother strong L.H.S. organization.

German Club grows in second year

Now in its second year, the German Club is an active up-and-coming organization and its members enjoyed a rather eventful year. Beginning in October, the club attended the Bavarian Festival in Boston. Later, the club traveled to New York to see a German play at the Radio City Music Hall and dined at the Die Kleine Konditorei. The year happily ended with a trip to Hampton Beach in June.

During the year, to raise funds for these activities, the club sponsored bake sales and car washes. Under the direction of faculty advisor, Mrs. Dumais, the German Club has proved to have the potential of becoming a very strong and active club at L.H.S. and all members are looking forward to a very bright future.

Theater Arts puts on "dirty" hit

In December, the Theater Arts Club presented its annual production. This year club members, under the direction of Mrs. Kelly, performed "Dirty Work at the Crossroads". "Dirty" indeed, for the villain not only incurred booing, but was also pepperred with popcorn.

The scenery and costumes were made by the club members. The play ran two nights and proved to be an enjoyable evening for all who were fortunate enough to attend.

Headed and founded by Charles 'Augustus' Bradshaw, and scorned as being a meager club of "those Latin students" when it first originated seven years ago, the Junior Classical League is now the largest and most productive club at L.H.S.

This year the J.C.L. was as busy as ever. In October Dr. Charles Beye, a member of the Classics Department at Boston University delivered a lecture entitled "Marcus, Son of Marcus." At Christmas time, the upperclassmen, along with newly recruited freshmen, visited the Birch Manor Nursing Home caroling up and down the halls and visiting with the Senior citizens.

January was also an extremely busy month for the club. A Classics Day was held at the University of Massachusetts where students in Latin and the J.C.L. met with other area students for a day of education and fun. The annual "All in the Family Night" again featuring entertainment by the Zumbyes, was also held.

This year both the J.C.L. and the school were honored when this year's show "Forgotten by Many, Remembered by Few" was performed for the Classical Association of New England. The CANE meeting was held at Fairfield University, where principal Mr. John Hurley was honored with a plaque. The year of events ended with a trip to Hampton Beach followed by dinner, a final meeting and a farewell to the graduating seniors.

Factor: Find a cause take on responsibility

Factor, a new organization for girls at L.H.S. began its first year in October. Its membership is composed of 25 seniors and 25 juniors. Factor has a threefold purpose. The first being to assist the faculty and administration of L.H.S. The second is to establish and maintain good public relations with the town of Ludlow through a system of community service projects. The third purpose of Factor is to encourage student involvement in all school-related activities and to build school spirit.

Membership is based upon past performances in school activities and new members are chosen from among the applicants by the senior members of Factor. Under the direction of Miss Martucci and Mr. Marceau, the club has gotten off to a good start and we wish them the best of luck for an even better second year.

1975 Lion celebrates 50 years of yearbooks

The 1975 Lion staff began preparations for the yearbook late in the junior year. Throughout the senior year, editor-in-chief,Joanne Maziarz and her staff hung in close under financial hardships. As our final days at L.H.S. drew to a close, the Lion lost two essential staff members. Trying to find replacements was difficult and it ended up that new editors were never really found. The old editors and staff members simply took on more responsibility.

Countless hours were spent from the school year's end, until well into the following year. When two more editors did not finish their sections, a few good and loyal friends took on the very important jobs that were left undone. These "lifesavers" learned everything from scratch and did a fantastic job.

This year's Lion continued the use of full color in the senior portrait section. New names were also given to some of the sections, hoping to improve the overall image of the book. This year's Community Affairs section also had a very special portion. It may not be known, but this is the 50th edition of the Ludlow High School yearbook. The section tried to present a small view of every decade of yearbooks.

We are grateful to the faculty and students who helped in any way to aid in the hopefully successful publication of our book.

For those who "hung in there" when the going got rough, the rewards will be great. We only hope that the memories of this year spent at L.H.S. have been recaptured through the Lion.

The 1974-1975 soccer season was a frustrating one for the Lions, with an overall record for the season of 4-8-4. The team was unpredictable this season, but the talent was always noticeable. The competition on the field seemed to be tougher, but our Lions still put forth their best efforts, and took the defeats of the season well.

The Lions had a weak start losing three of their first four games, the other being a tie with South Hadley. Their first triumph was over the Longmeadow Lancers. They went on to add three ties, two losses and a surprising upset over Minnechaug to their record. They closed the season with close losses and two wide-margined wins over Holyoke and Agawam.

There were only four seniors finishing out the season; Leo Goncalves, Joe Francisco, Ilidio Dias, and Steve Robitaille. Co-Captains Tony Pio and Leo Goncalves were the backbone of the team with the help of the other seniors and underclassmen. It is in these underclassmen that Coach Raymond Yando has great hope for next season.

Cross-Country . . . Desire

The 1974 Cross-Country season was a great success, especially when compared to the team's past performances in recent years. Over a span of four years at Ludlow, there was a total of 5 victories against over 40 losses. This years spirited group, however, compiled a record of 10 wins and 4 losses, and within the league, 4 wins and 2 losses. Especially satisfying wins came against Longmeadow, league Champion, and Minnechaug, a perennial Western Mass. power. The Lions finished with a strong placing of 8th of 18 schools in the Division I bracket of the Western Mass. Championships.

The team was led by senior Jim LaMondia, and senior Co-Captains Ray Boisvert and John Scheurich. Ludlow's best runners were juniors David Coache and Mark Hiorns, and Freshman Bruce Hiorns. After varsity runners Mark Dusel and Mark Hiorns were injured midway through the season, sophomores Dave Reynolds and Tony Ferreira filled in with strong performances. Other runners were junior Mitch Joslin, sophomores Tom LaMondia and John Sevigne, and Freshman Mike Ostrowski.

Bruce Hiorns and Dave Coache both placed well in Valley Wheel and Western Mass. Championships.

The 1974 football season had one of the best starts ever. After the first five games, they had compiled a record of 3-1-1, and the team was in tremendously high spirits. Unfortunately, they lost their next five games which were hard both physically and emotionally. This gave the determined team an overall record of 3-6-1 at the close of the season. The young Lions' greatest asset was obviously their strong desire to win and the surprising amount of team unity. They worked vigorously on drills and plays for over 4 months to do their best for their school, their coaches, and for their teammates. they made many sacrifices, including playing painfully injured; despite coach Andreis' efforts and tape.

The Junior Varsity and Freshman teams had tough seasons also. The Junior Varsity team finished with a strong record of 3-4. The Freshman closed the hard season with a 1-4 record.

Hockey Brings Championship To Ludlow

The 1974-75 edition of the L.H.S. Hockey Lion exemplified the true meaning of being a "TEAM". Through hard work and togetherness, on and off the ice, the icemen posted a 15- 2-1 league record and won the Wright Division Championship. After a 6-4 Western Massachusetts playoff win over East Longmeadow, the Lions dropped an exciting 3- 2 overtime decision to Chicopee Comp. in the semifinals. Three members of the team, Sophomore defenseman Gary Martins, Wright Division scoring champion Wayne Cristina and Goalie Jim Mastalerz, were chosen to the All-League team. In addition, Mastalerz was an all Western Massachusetts choice and recipient of the Bessone Trophy as the Most Valuable Player of Western Massachusetts Division II hockey.

Not soon to be forgotten will be the spirit of the Lion fans, the opening game victory over Chicopee Comp. the many comeback victories achieved through sheer determination, the important 4-3 win against arch rival Minnechaug and Captain Wayne Cristina holding aloft the Wright Division trophy. All provided for an exciting and memorable season.

This year's Junior Varsity team had a pretty good season ending up with a 7-4-2 record. Under the coaching of Tony Costa, the boys gained experience and confidence which will hopefully lead to another championship varsity team next year.

This year's Varsity Basketball team was again unable to produce the needed victories for a winning season. Many of their games were quite close, but the lack of height continuously hurt the Lions. They closed the season with an upset victory over the South Hadley Tigers which couldn't have been sweeter. This gave the boys an overall record of 1 win 18 losses. The Lions were a strong team; taking the defeats well and never giving up on themselves or each other. Unfortunately, there will be only 6 lettermen returning next year.

The Junior Varsity squad also had a disappointing season, compiling a record of 3 wins and 16 loses. But like all other Ludlow teams, the boys never stopped putting their best efforts into the game, and they have every hope for a better and more victorious season next year.

The Freshman boys had a fair season, closing with a record of 6 wins and 9 loses. Like all freshman teams, inexperience hurt them, but if this record is the result of inexperience, Ludlow High Basketball has much to look forward to.

The Lionesses repeatedly had the sweet taste of victory this year. They had their problems and losses, but each made them a stronger squad with a greater desire. They had a 13-4 overall record losing only to the quick Minnechaug girls in the league, and to the Trade team in the last seconds of an independent game. The team didn't have height to their advantage, but they made up for this lack with speed and spirit. The team was invited to the Western Massachusetts Girl's Basketball Tournament for the second year in a row. They were seated eleventh and challenged the team from Hoosac, seated sixth. The Lionesses were defeated by the talented Hoosac girls, in a long, hard game. Nevertheless the girls had a memorable season, having both a great record and a great time together. The Junior Varsity Team had a difficult season ending with a 6-9 record. But they learned and improved considerably, and have hopes for an even better season next year.

The 1975 Lion baseball squad brought back the winning tradition of Ludlow High. With a valiant late season surge the Lion nine came within one game of taking the Valley Wheel Championship. Their league record of 8-4 was good for record place behind champion Agawam.

The varsity unit was led by the phenominal pitching of senior Craig Warner. Craig's 9-1 record and his .86 Earned Run Average earned him a berth on the Valley Wheel All-League team. Also chosen as league all-stars were hard-hitting, junior, first-basemen Greg Bell, and senior Co-captain Jim Mastalerz.

The season started slowly for the diamond men, but they showed their spirit which has trade-marked Lion ball clubs. The team high-lighted its season by defeating league powers Agawam and South Hadley, twice each.

Girls' Softball — Valley Wheel Champs

The 1975 girls' softball team had quite an exciting and successful season. There were many old faces, but there were also some talented new faces which helped the Lionesses gain their 15-3 record. In league play the girls had a 9-1 record which earned them the Valley Wheel Championship and they again earned a berth in the Western Massachusetts Tournament. In the first game against Palmer, Ludlow showed a strong defense and offense and came out on top with a score of 17-3. The second game against Belchertown was a close one, as the girls bowed out 6-5.

The girls came through with some good wins when they needed them. For instance in order to win the league title, they needed a victory over Minnechaug and they easily beat them by a score of 15-5. There were also a few close games like the 11-10 win over a tough South Hadley team. Their only loss in league play was in a game against Agawam, in which poor hitting and costly errors hurt Ludlow.

Coach Libby is looking forward to the 1976 season, when many talented players will be returning, but she will be missing four very important seniors. Leaving will be — Captain Cheryl Pawlin and Co-captains Nancy Lewicki, Jean Glen and Michelle Gamache, all of whom helped immensely in earning recognition and a great record for the Lionesses.

Golf team has strong start

The Lions had a fantastic start this year, winning 4 of their first 5 matches, with their only loss being a close decision at Longmeadow. Then the team ran into some tough luck, losing many close matches including a tie against champion Minnechaug, which was turned into a loss by 4 shots when the scores were tallied. Through the drought, the starters Jim Mitus, Greg Orlik, Ken Korzec, Bob Novak, Scott Symington, Eugene Stasiowski and Wayne Boduch (sharing the last spot) played well.

There were many highlights during the season. The Lions defeated East Longmeadow and South Hadley, both for the first time in five years. They also beat Agawam on their home course, for the first time in several years. The team held the league lead for a time, early in the season.

Captain Jim Mitus supported the team's lowest average, a 78, which featured a fine one-over-par 73 at Wilbraham. He and Junior Greg Orlik also qualified for the Western Massachusetts Individual Tournament. Neither played very well, as they both posted an 81, which was only good enough for a play-off with 3 other boys. This play-off was eventually won with a birdie as both Jim and Greg made pars.

Coach Malek looks upon next season as a year in which he can rebuild the team, since only one starter, Greg Orlik, will be returning.

Though handicapped, Lions still heard loudly!

The 1975 Lion trackmen succeeded in producing the best season record ever — five (5) wins and seven (7) losses. The boys had some very tough competitors this season and many of their losses came in extremely close meets. The Lions still have the disadvantage of not having a track of their own on which to practice every day. Even with this handicap, nine trackmen competed in the Valley Wheel Championships, six of whom continued on to the Western Massachusetts Finals. Captain John Scheurich also qualified to compete in the Massachusetts State Finals. The qualifying runners all did a fine job and they even set five new records for the Ludlow books.

Next year's team will be a fairly young one, due to the large number of Freshmen on track this year and to the loss of seven senior members.

Coaches Szlosek and Larrivee look forward to an even better season next year, hoping that the trend of improvement in the track and field will continue.

UNDERCLASSMEN

Underclassmen —

Spirited, carefree, light-hearted and jovial are all adjectives one might use to describe underclassmen. Each year hundreds of new faces brighten the halls of Ludlow High School. Their enthusiasm and loyalty displayed at athletics, social events and student clubs is boundless. Not only do they support senior class functions, they also stage many highly successful events, including the Freshman Dance, Sophomore Banquet, and Junior Prom. Without these activities the school would certainly become dull. educational structure.

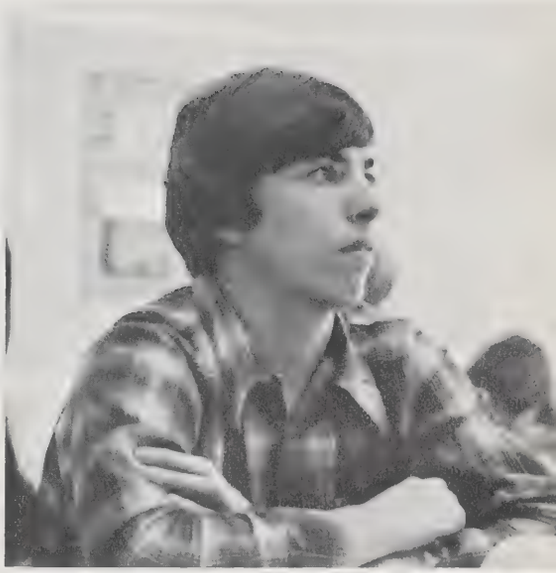

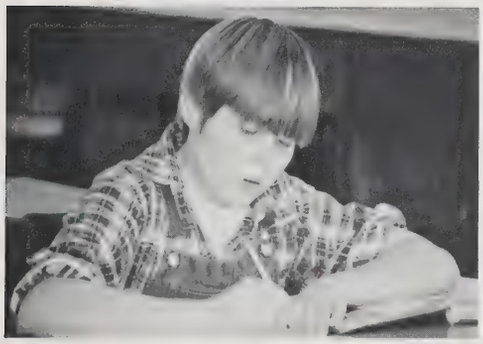

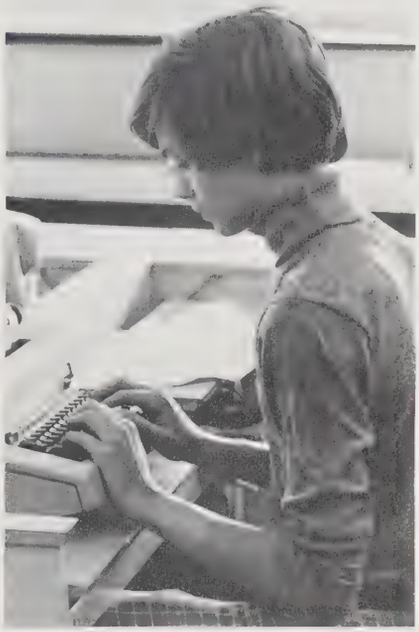

Hope for the future

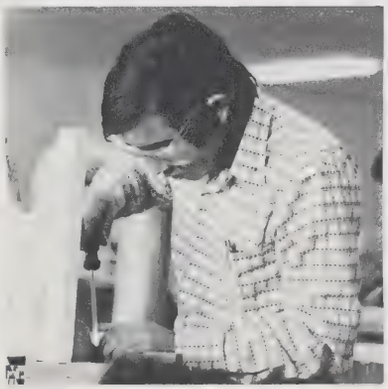

However, just as these students try to better their school they strive to better themselves. Each works toward his goal through hard work, self-sacrifice and most of all ambition. They come to school hungry for knowledge and the answers to the many unanswerable questions. Reaching for these intangible hopes, they bring with them new ideas for change and progress. Each knows that in order to receive any enlightenment he must give of himself, share with others, become part of the whole. Underclassmen, they are really the future of the school.

THE CLASS OF 1975

THE CLASS OF 1975

We dedicate ourselves
Not only to strive
For the goals we have set
But to meet them and set even more . . .

Not only to hold
To the dreams we have had
But to dream greater dreams than before . . .

Not only to enjoy
This land and its wealth
But to make a better place to live . . .

And not only to take
What we can from this life
But to love and to generously give.

Nothing Gold Can Stay

Nature's first green is gold,
Her hardest hue to hold.
Her early leaf's a flower;
But only so an hour.
Then leaf subsides to leaf.
So Eden sank to grief,
So dawn goes down today.
Nothing gold can stay.

Senior Class Officers

Stacy Pagos —
President

It is often very difficult to actually put down in writing a certain person's feelings; it's even more difficult to express the special feelings of an entire class. These special feelings are for four very exceptional people, the officers of the senior class of 1975.

The Class of 1975 holds much gratitude in their hearts towards these four very exceptional people. Due to their hard efforts and devotion our class had a very successful senior year.

Michele Koscher —
Vice President

Jeanne Hopkins —
Secretary

To:
Stacy, Michele,
Jeanne & Jane
Thanks so much for all you've done.
Gratefully,

Greaser Day

Everyone remembers the hopping, bopping days of the 50's. On February 14th, 1975, the seniors decided to relive those beautiful days of the past. They donned leather jackets, white t-shirts, pleated skirts and white bobby socks; they even boosted the Bryl Creme industry. The seniors looked as slick and cool as Elvis and all his fans, and for one day, Ludlow High relived the past.

1. These two greasers look like they're ready for action. 2. Even the girls got a little "greasy". 3. This group of cool dudes posed for a group picture. 4. The strong and never-ending efforts of many produced this remarkable snow sculpture.

Long Ago Tomorrow

Tomorrow, and forever, when the Class of 1975 remember their Senior Show, they will have countless memories to go back on — two months of rehearsals; a last-minute snow sculpture (finished in time); Sunday night's rehearsal; Wednesday's cancelled rehearsal; trying to make the opening and closing numbers sound good; "Consider Yourself" and "You'll Never Walk Alone"; an interrupted dress rehearsal; a happy and successful Belchertown performance; watching the show on T.V. backstage; or waiting for such familiar things like Tony rolling his stomach, the Kung Fools or the crazy antics of the "Mash" crew; and finally the biggest Valentine ever for Uncle Jerry, the Senior Show Co-ordinator.

The show was presented on two nights, February 14th and 15th. Lloyd Mendes, Jeanne Hopkins, Jane Nunes and Paul Weaver served as M.C.'s. The show consisted of 32 acts and involved about 275 Seniors. Among the many dedicated people who helped with the show were: Kathy Martins and Mark Thompson, student co-ordinators; Mr. Martin and his stage and lighting crews; Mr. Wrinn & Mr. Layman and the stage band; Mr. Andreis, whose help with the snow sculpture is beyond description; and Mr. Gay and his technical crew.

The show marked the peak of the year for many. It brought the class closer than they had ever been and even though the two nights passed quickly, the memories will last forever in our minds and especially in our hearts.

1. Tony Leits models the latest style in grass skirts while rolling his stomach in "Stars and Fashions." 2. Debbie Royce can't seem to find her spectacles as Ann Chesnes looks on in "The Hare Has Lost His Spectacles." 3. Craig MacMaster and Dean Strong play a duet.

1.Brian Riley awaits his turn on stage as Hot Lips in "Mash." 2.Sue Esteves gets a little help from fellow "Kung Fool" Nancy Boudreau. 3.The crew from "Mash" line up for Roll Call. 4.Don Baillargeon stells the tory of "Prinderella and the Cince." 5.This group of ragged hoboes are happy just singing along, "Side by Side."

Remembered . . .

1. These three Latin beauties, "The Samba Sisters," sing of far-away South America. 2. Ken Korzec defends his coal car "Greast Lightning" against Dan Hennessy's ridicule. 3. A "Spoon Full of Sugar" and a delightful dance with "Mary Poppins" and friends. 4. Leslie Henriquis sings "Am I Blue". 5. These Ludlow girls brought back burlesque with "You Gotta Have a Gimmick."

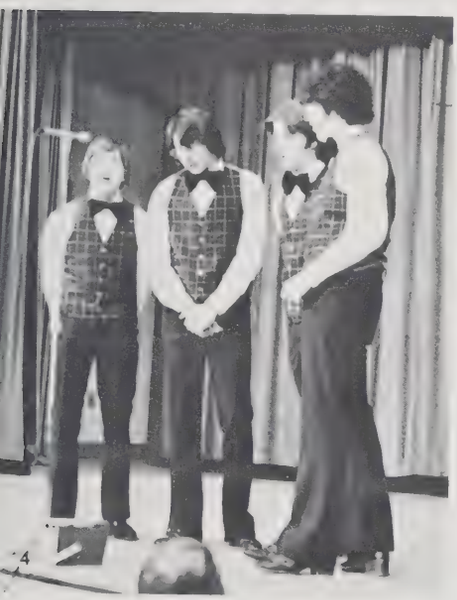

1. The Mouseketeers are joined by Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck for a few numbers. 2. How to operate the cannon poses the biggest problem to these French Legionnaires. 3. Heather Falconer joins in the Hee-Haw "gossiping." 4. The barber shop quartet strikes up a couple tunes. 5. Kung Fool, Kathy Martins and partner Laurie Thompson, in action. 6. Maria Lamas just isn't going anywhere on those skates.

Forever

4

1. Angie Bissailon and Alyce Mucha of "Cabaret" sing for "Money, Money." 2. Soloist Joe Lyons sings "Lonely People" and "Fire and Rain." 3. The fashion stars anxiously await the judges' decision. 4. Jeanne Chenier twirls her baton and dances to "Meet Me on the Corner Down at Joe's Cafe." 5. The cince, Mark Witowski dances with one of the stugly epsisters, Steve Budreau. 6. Beware, the jungle is full of sleek creatures like this tiger, Elaine Messier.

6

1. A few last minute instructions from director, Mr. Linehan. 2. The amazing "Mash" creations are out-to-get even with the doctors. 3. A piano solo of "MacArthur Park" by Charles Phelan. 4. A few peaceful moments of relaxation backstage. 5. Mark Paquette of lighting crew awaits his cue. 6. Lynn Brodeur and Linda Fernandes combine their talents to perform "Sing" and "Top of the World." 7. A Portuguese accordion solo by Helder Ganhao.

When you walk through a storm,

Sunday night, June 1, 1975 and the Class Night Presentation began a busy and hectic "Senior Week" for the Class of 1975. The evening began with an Invocation by Richard Royce and a welcome to all by class president, Stacy Pagos. After an address by Superintendent, Hugh Macfarlane, the Class Histories were read, followed by the disclosure of the Class Ballot, read by Class Couple Barbara Mazur and Mark Paquette. Joanne Maziarz then delivered the Class Night Oration, a salutatorian's feeling about graduation. A highlight of the evening was the presentation of scholarships and awards, including National Honor Society Certificates and Pro Merito pins. The Class Poem was also read by its author Cynda Rescia. The program then came to a close as the class sang "You'll Never Walk Alone," a song that has now become a very special part of the Class of 1975.

1.Mr. Cavallo presents a Pro Merito certificate to John Scheurich. 2.Everyone on stage joined in the singing of the "National Anthem" at the beginning of the ceremonies. 3.A wistful smile from Cynda Rescia, author of the Class Poem. 4.Karen Costa read the Freshman Class History.

And don't be afraid

Many of us never thought it would happen, but on Monday night, June 2, the Senior Class held its last official class function, the Senior Banquet. However, the seniors were not alone. They were joined by many members of the faculty and administration who wished to participate in the festivities and to wish the seniors well.

Before enjoying a delicious meal served by Lillian Caterers, the seniors read over the special edition of the CUB, containing the class prophecies, wills, ballot and poem and several faculty farewells. Later, a fun evening of dancing to the music of "The Twelfth of Never" was had by all.

A very special attraction was the presentation of a slide show by John Diotalevi full of memories of the past year. The show brought tears to many eyes, and was a treasure to special moments that we will all remember for a long time to come.

All too soon, the hour ending the affair approached. The doors opened and the seniors began to slowly depart, not really wanting to see the evening end. But even though that very beautiful night is ended, we still all have our memories of June 2, of 1975, of the past four years, and of our very special friends — the Class of 1975.

1.Miss Mazza and Tony Leits enjoy a last dance. 2.Don't worry, we won't tell mommy you smoke. 3."Can I blow your whistle too?" 4."Now, what do you mean by that?"

of the dark

1.These couples enjoy a quiet, slow dance. 2.The seniors get together for a little girl-talk. 3.Here we are world! —Do all evil, Speak all evil, Think all evil. 4."My girdle is killing me!" 5.Nidia Ponte and Amelia DaCosta enter the hall.

At the end of the storm is a golden sky

The faculty and students of Ludlow High School, led by the Class of 1976 bid their last farewell to the Senior Class with another touching Senior Assembly. The Seniors entered the auditorium to the now-traditional, "Scarborough Fair". This was their last day at Ludlow High School.

The program consisted of many treasured memories of the past four years presented in the forms of music, slides, award presentations, and speeches. The keynote address was presented by Mr. Steve Schubert, and Joanne Maziarz, yearbook editor, told of the trials and progress of the yearbook. Later, Stacy Pagos presented the traditional peace pipe to the Junior Class President, Diane Kibbe. The ribboned pipe is a symbol of school unity and senior leadership.

A very touching open letter from Mr. Bradshaw, the Yearbook Advisor, was read by Mona Dominique expressing the feelings of this very special man for the Class of 1975.

As the seniors left the auditorium, for the last time, there were many tears and many memories. These will be cherished forever, because as we all know only too well, we wouldn't be going back again. We had to say "Goodbye" to Ludlow High School.

1.Stacy Pagos and Angie Bissaillon relax a bit before entering the auditorium for the Senior Assembly. 2.Seniors enter the auditorium to the music of "Scarborough Fair." 3.Guest speaker Steve Schubert addresses the Senior Class. 4.Juniors Judy Pereira and Gary Ziencina bring back many memories of what our senior year was like. 5.Expressing the feeling of the entire class, Joe Lyons sings a tearful "Poems, Prayers and Promises."

and the sweet silver song of a lark

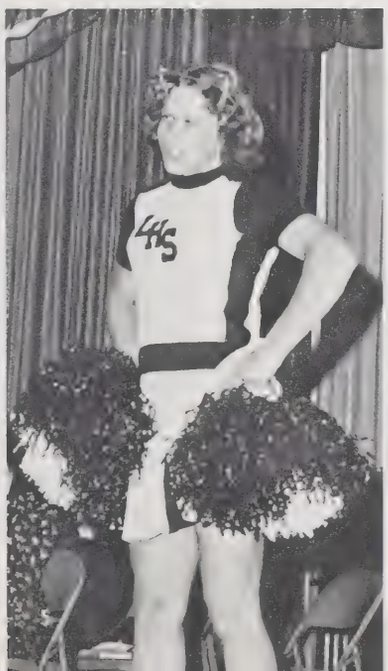

1.Diane Kibbe makes her acceptance speech, promising to carry on school spirit and leadership symbolized by the peace pipe. 2. Seniors await the start of the program. 3.A quiet moment's reflection. 4.Juniors pinned flowers on the seniors as they entered the auditorium. 5.Terry Chandonnet makes a very cute L.H.S. cheerleader.

Walk on, walk on,

On the evening of June 4, Commencement Exercises began for the Ludlow High School Class of 1975. The seniors entered the Springfield Municipal Auditorium, to the music of "Pomp and Circumstance," beneath the traditional arches held by selected members of the Junior Class. Members of the graduating class then joined Concert Choir and Band for a few numbers and several speeches followed.

The Valedictory Address was delivered by Maria Goncalves and a graduation speech was given by Mr. Hugh Macfarlane, Superintendent of Schools. Special awards were presented to certain students by school principal, Mr. John J. Hurley, and several more scholarship announcements were made. Mr. Napolitan, Chairman of the School Committee, then presided over the issuance of the diplomas which slowly brought the program to a close. Finally, class president, Stacy Pagos, bid farewell and good luck to her classmates. The newly graduated seniors tearfully filed out of the auditorium, as Concert Choir sang "May The Lord Bless and Keep You".

The tears were both of happiness and of sadness. The joy of accomplishment filled all of us, but we were also filled with the realization that we would never be together as a class again. For us it was "Good-Bye" and "Thank You", to L.H.S. to our classmates and to our friends and memories, whom we shall forever hold as a very, very special part of our lives.

1.Maria Goncalves delivered the Valedictory Address. 2. Superintendent, Hugh Macfarlane spoke briefly to the graduating class. 3.Mr. Napolitan, Chairman of the school committee, spoke to the class before issuing their diplomas. 4.Members of the Senior Class joined the Band and Concert Choir for their last time.

1.Some people just get so involved in their thinking. 2.I'll figure out the solution if it takes me forever!. 3."Ooops, wrong door!" 4.Brian Riley is no male chauvinist. 5. Paul Keeping and Mike Masley hard at work.
